

Greetings community,

Recently, the redelegations of SCRT tokens has been performed by SCRT Labs (SLABs) as outlined in the 2024 roadmap post.

[

image

955×358 27.1 KB

](https://global.discourse-cdn.com/standard17/uploads/enigma1/original/2X/4/45975f960b52ed47151ac8cb6716494339062dbc.png)

As the largest tokeholder on Secret Network, SLABs has an outsized impact on the sustainability & distribution of network stake, deeply impacting multiple stakerholders/builders who are the lifeblood of the network. As such, visibility around the how much / why / who receives is absolutely critical to ensure resources are efficiently allocated.

This is a similar situation to many other layer-1 ecosystems where the largest entities disclose who is being staked to & how much. Because SCRT staking is transparent, the secret community could attempt to hunt this information down on their own.

However, in the interest of building community trust via more transparency, I am posting this RFT with the hopes of the community receiving public information from SLABs on the delegations amounts & to which validators.

If this information is not to be disclosed, I will be following up with a signaling proposal on-chain to come to a collective consensus on whether the secret community cares about basic transparency surrounding delegations.

Would love to get SLABs, other community members, & validators thoughts on this request.

-Carter Woetzel