

My understanding is that zk.money no longer has a sequencer running and the keys to the contracts have been thrown away. Is there anything that would prevent an independent party from running a public sequencer and restarting the chain?

I'm not talking about just enabling withdraws, but fully restarting the chain and running it as it was before it was shutdown.