Abstract

This document ("AIP-2

") proposes the refund of tokens sent to contract address accidentally in airdrop day

Motivation

We know that the day of the airdrop brought a lot of euphoria to users, and that by mistake, amidst the chaos created by network congestion and influencers on twitter, some users made a mistake and transferred their tokens to the contract address.

In my view, it's fair that we give these users a second chance so that they can continue to be part of the governance of arbitrum

Rationale

The Arbitrum Foundation and the DAO Governance are intended to serve as vehicles that enable impactful, transparent and fair decentralized governance by the wider Arbitrum community, by allowing more users to join the DAO we will be ensuring a more decentralized governance

Steps to Implement

1. List of address which sent $ARB to contract address

First of all we would need a list of addresses that made the mistake since the time of the airdrop, I believe the foundation or DAO members can do this.

We also need to set a deadline for rescuing these users, so that this process is not done multiple times.

1. Sent tokens to contract airdrop and add this address in airdrop list again

In my view this would be the simplest process, it would avoid transferring to private wallets by the team and we would keep the airdrop process already developed.

Timeline

The arbitrum foundation would need to evaluate this proposal and give us time for a solution.
