

Hey all

We're planning to get more involved in Eigen Layer, as the community gathering here is awesome. We hope to bring a few years of practising organisation design and governance for DAOs, strategising ecosystem development, planning fund deployment and more, and together grow this ecosystem.

A quick introduction and then sharing some ideas to hopefully spark a conversation

About me

I'm an organisation designer and governance nerd. Instigator at RnDAO (more on this below), colead at TogetherCrew (a project to empower communities with their data). Ex head of governance at Aragon, Supervisory Council SingularityNET, used to train BCG consultants and run workshops for executive education in Oxford U. Started two companies and began my career as a Michelin chef, so expect a few cooking metaphors and feel free to ask me for recipe recommendations.

About RnDAO

We're an R&D DAO focused on empowering humane collaboration through research, advisory, and venture building. We're creating an ecosystem of modular and composable CollaborationTech tools (aka B2B software, organisations on chain, future of work). We've for the past two years gathered a community passionate about decision-making, ecosystem development, organisation design, DAO legals, and more. We now have 8 projects building CollabTech tools (scheduling, sense-making, robotic process automation, rewards and compensation, etc.). We hope working with Eigen Layer can help us advance towards our vision for a modular and composable supper app for human collaboration and, in so doing, serve this ecosystem with all the learnings we have gathered in the last decade of obsessing about this topic.
