

I would like to discuss strategies for incentivizing market makers to provide liquidity in new markets.

It appears to me that there is little sense in stimulating deeply liquid markets with rewards from Chaos Labs for market makers. Instead, redirecting these incentives towards long-tail markets could be more beneficial. Otherwise, these markets remain utterly non-competitive.

RNDR Market right now

Hey @chaoslabs , what are your thoughts?