

A 501c3 that owns a licensed construction company (incorporated). DAO to run/own/guide/direct all aspects of the 501c3 and as much of the construction subsidiary without infringing on the legal aspects of state licensing board requirements for RMO's. Any state licensing can be achieved across any division of construction. Current license is CA class A, general engineering.

As with most 501c3's, this should be funded through fundraising efforts/donations etc.

On the construction group side, retain ability to perform profit/non-profit work for the DAO/community.

In addition to ground-pounding fundraiser campaign drives by the 501c3, it will need to excel at leveraging local, state, federal resources to unlock the ability to make tangible impacts through the DAO's positive community and strength by choosing projects that seem unsurmountable. For instance, develop the ability to "blueprint" a plan to eradicate community homelessness. The vision should be shaped in a way that because there is no single-source solution, there should be a foundational platform to start from and evolve as needed/voted on by the requirements generators (the people).

This "idea" along with having the availability to resources, online communities for developing and sharing, along with people that care can make just about any idea achievable.

Cost Estimate.... The stress will probably kill me in 5-10 years.
