

10MM $UNI (~$60MM) are currently necessary to submit a formal proposal. Even Andre Cronje is having trouble getting enough $UNI delegated:

It seems there is some misunderstanding. I don't actually want to be a delegate. I just think its next to impossible to actually collect 10M worth of delegate votes to actually make a proposal. I've been spamming the whole day and have 385.7K UNI

I propose that Uniswap adopt Compound's Autonomous Proposals [1] to help alleviate this problem:

@aliatiia_ @UniswapProtocol

@UniswapProtocol should also adopt @compoundfinance's Autonomous Proposals

it effectively reduces the barrier to creating formal proposals by letting community members pool voting power left a comment on the thread too 😊
