

Hey folks, Rafael CEO of TrustToken here. Today we announced that ownership of TUSD is moving over to an Asia-based consortium that will be working with Tron to develop and grow the product. We believe TUSD is the same strong product you know and love and this shouldn't require any change to its level of integration in AAVE.

In fact, given the new ownership of TUSD, I think you might see increased usage on AAVE, which would benefit everyone.

Additionally, in the interest of transparency with communities such as AAVE, we've made this public announcement several weeks in advance of the smart contract ownership moving over. Some details:

1. TrustToken Inc. will continue to manage the operations, compliance, and banking relations of the TUSD product.
2. There are no smart contract upgrades planned at this time, we'll of course let you know if/when we expect any changes.

I'm available here for any comments and questions and looking forward to increased usage on the AAVE platform.
