

I think that it probably reflects more the orderliness of the underlying markets with respect to training data that is years out of date.