

Hello Aave community,

For the past nine months, Boardroom has contributed to Aave with weekly governance recaps (Governance Weekly Recap - #45 by duncand) that provide the community quick and easy summaries of what's going on in Aave governance. As an extension of our activity in the Aave community, we wanted to gauge interest in Boardroom beginning to host a biweekly governance call.

The objective for these calls would be to provide an open forum for stakeholders and new participants to engage with each other on governance-related topics, such as live and upcoming proposals, delegate initiatives, meta-governance discussions (i.e. what is and isn't working in Aave's governance process), and Aave's longer-term governance development.

A potential agenda for our first call:

- The state of delegate initiatives, e.g. the gas rebate proposal, the Delegate Code of Conduct, Butter's incentivized delegate campaign and the ACI's Orbit, etc.
- Reflections on the new Risk Steward process
- Recent proposals and discussions of interest

These calls would also create a venue for members of the DAO to get live feedback on governance-related ideas or to present an analysis of grants or experiments (e.g. the incentivized delegate campaign).

While we share the interest of others in minimizing governance overhead, we've seen such calls prove productive in other DAOs and, as a neutral third party with broad governance experience, we feel equipped to lead this initiative for Aave.

We invite the community to share thoughts on this idea.
