

What are the currently available solutions for medium-volume distributed & persistent storage? Aim is probably on the order of a gigabyte over the lifetime of an app, so we can't just put it on chain.

Should we just use IPFS, or are there any more recent alternatives? Not to say that there's something wrong with IPFS.

Pitch your favorite project