

My understanding is that targets are relative strength, and 0.5 does not always mean “no price movement”.

You might want to plot the moving average of the target for each era to see if it is a market move.