

On the github, it states that "The block should always be a future block, never the current one."

Why cant we target the current block? Isnt the current block the pending block meaning that we can add to it?