

As I understand it, with ICS v1, this would result in every validator in the Cosmos Hub validator set running the sequencer. I'm curious what the advantages would be in that case over the validators just running the app directly as a consumer chain?