

Nobody knows! They are neutralized to different things and some such is about all the explanation we've gotten. Testing shows that at least several of them are pretty useful though.