

Introduction

warning We are excited to announce that the Band V3 is currently under development!

During this period, you may encounter intermittent updates, changes, and limited availability as we work to enhance its features and performance.

We appreciate your patience and understanding as we aim to deliver a robust and improved testing experience. Stay tuned for more updates and release information! Once a signal is registered on the signaling hub as an active signal with guaranteed feeding interval, BandChain validators are responsible for constantly feeding the signal's price to BandChain.
