

It's been more than one month since the launch of the Taiko mainnet, many of us have participated in almost all the testnets and now we can compare how well we did.

Personally, I think that Taiko mainnet looks much better than testnet and this is determined by the ever-expanding ecosystem of quality projects and companies, and it is also much more interesting to see support for Taiko mainnet by applications than to see support only for the testnet, this is great tbh
