

How does POS protected against an attack trying to mine a new chain up to the last finality block, where ETH values are < $10? (Making it practical for a decently wealthy investor to change history)