

Why is there a silence on the part of the developers about the swap at Binance? I have been following the project and have been an investor since the beginning of 2018. I am concerned about not finding answers about whether any exchange will support the Enigma swap or if there is any exchange that will accept SCRT. I would like the community to speak out about it. Has there been any conversation between the developers and a broker? I am afraid it will be very bad if none of them speak out on the matter. I would like to be a little more relieved on this subject.