

In general & if you are talking about the 60 day targets - we get the live data as new training data soon as possible, that means after 20 workdays have passed and the targets can be computed and filled in based on the actual stock market prices. But that is before the 60 day target is known, so those are still NaN.