

Hi fam, i would like to point out the risk of losing staked $APE if it gets listed for sale on any marketplace.

Horizen Labs could probably help the apes out by putting this in big bold letters but:

IF YOU HAVE YOUR APE LISTED AND APECOIN STAKED,
YOUR APECOIN STAKE SELLS WITH IT

Already one victim.

since staking takes the tokenId as the key to finding the position, if the owner changes for a certain NFT, it would automatically be owned by the new Owner, so please be safe when you carry on your trades.

- this is the tx for the attack:

- attack contract was deployed much earlier, 36 days ago:

- overall, it's safe to use the contract, but just remember to not list that BAYC/MAYC/BAKC, before you withdraw $APE tokens staked from the contract.
