

OP holders apparently gain from increasing transaction fee revenue. This seems directly contradictory to Optimism's mission. Can this be problematic in the future? Should we think of better ways to align governance interests?