

From the little I can gather, proof of capacity is not suitable for sharding via random sampling.

Is this the only flaw associated with it?

Sorry if this isn't the right place to ask.

I'm asking, because my scaling solution doesn't require random sampling.