

I'm considering operating a neutral relay, but is it actually worth the effort, or how does the community view this? Flashbots has announced TEE-Boost. There are also discussions about Preconfirmation and PROF.

Regarding the direction of the PBS market and relays, I'd like to discuss with the community whether they would welcome new relay operations at this point, or if there are specific items they want to test through relays.