

For example I would love to see how TC performs on syntethic pools of submissions, where the predictions are simulated and predict, each one, a fixed percentage of correct target. How the evolution of TC would be like for each submission? Would it converge? Would it continue to increase? I would expect the stakes to converge to the optimal values that maximize the portfolio derived from the predictions and so i expect TC to becomes zero.