

getRateLiquidityDepthByPair

This function is used to calculate the amount of liquidity that exists for a specific pair up to the specified exchange rate.

...

Copy public async getRateLiquidityDepthByPair(sourceToken: string, targetToken: string, rate: string)

...

Name Type Description sourceToken token address The token being sold. targetToken token address The token being bought. rate string (number) The number of target tokens per base token.

Returns

This function returns astring with the amount of liquidity available at the specified rate.

Previous getMaxRateByPair Next CarbonVortex Last updated2 months ago On this page