

A very common question. And yes, that's exactly what it means – you cannot track a specific stock from era to era – the ids are essentially just random one-time-use identifiers. (If you are dying to do time-series analysis, take a look at the Signals side of things, but you have to bring your own data in that case.)