

To help bootstrap the market we would like to submit our (Flashbots) builder's blocks to other relays. However, this would mean sharing searchers and users' transactions with a third party before they are including on-chain. How should we think about which parties we should trust?