

Hello dYdX Community,

First and foremost I want to remind everyone that this is a space where constructive criticism and value-oriented conversations are encouraged and welcomed

. However, it is essential to maintain a professional and respectful tone in all discussions. Personal attacks or hostile behavior do not contribute to productive dialogue and will not be tolerated

I encourage everyone to take a moment to revisit our [community guidelines

](<https://dydx.forum/guidelines>) and [code of conduct

](<https://dydx.forum/pub/code-of-conduct>). These guidelines exist to ensure that we maintain a minimum level of respectfulness ensuring a collaborative environment where all members feel comfortable engaging. Moving forward, we will be taking action against those who fail to adhere to these, previously agreed upon standards.

Let's continue to work together to make this community a place where ideas can be shared openly, but always with respect and a focus on building. Constructive feedback and opinions are important, and are, when shared in the right (professional and respectful) way, a net positive to the dYdX Community.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.
