

I copied and worked through this notebook it all worked for me out of the box. I thought it was a great introduction that went through all of the steps from data to submitting.

Instead of saving the API credentials in a .env I found it easier to save it as a json file and then just add that filename to my .gitignore.