

I'm behind the curve here a little, just getting my Numerbay account setup etc. I should have everything setup this week at some point and will officially open for business next Sat (with no expectation of selling anything for many weeks ). Having said that, when I do start selling, I'd like to see a portion of those sales (1 to 2%?) roll back as a platform fee. It's easy enough to make a donation to the cause, but I think a standard fee makes easier to write off for tax purposes. Never too early to think about survival after the CoE relationship ends.

On a different note, I'd also like to see a sub forum here where sellers can discuss their products a little. Add a little hype and clarity etc.