

As the ApeCoin ecosystem continues to grow above and beyond the native English-speaking crowd, what steps can we take to ensure that information and participation is made available to those who aren't able to effectively communicate in English? How will we know when the need is great enough to warrant adding these resources?

This may be a premature talking point, I'll admit, but I know that language servers are a thing in Discord and wonder what steps would be necessary to implement, say, a Spanish-language forum space for exclusively Spanish-speaking participants.
