

I've been reading up on the governance notes and asking around, trying to make sense of what's happening with the new foundation. They haven't received all the money from the old one yet that tor runs, and there's been no word on what's going on with that. Also, I've heard Lisa hasn't been showing up for the governance calls or answering basic questions.

Does anyone know when the rest of the money is supposed to be transferred? Or basic stuff like who's working at the foundation and their salaries? It's starting to feel the same as before.

I'm hoping things go well with this transition, but without answers it's hard to believe. It's been almost a year since voting on a transition. How many more years will this take? If someone can get these answers public It would go a long way.
