

Is it conceivable that unit production time will become the logical and rational measure of the value of goods & services in an Ai-Machine dominant future global decentralized economy?