

Hopefully, I won't get chewed out for talking about theoretical valuation methodology.

These concepts seem to be poorly understood and consequently code design decisions (for plasma/Dapps and around UX) are being made without consideration of the monetary policy consequences.

I would like to think this will help raise the quality of discourse surrounding valuation and token withholding. Happy to discuss more with anyone who is interested.

A Discourse on Token Valuation