

With Lido protocol rapidly growing, launching referral program and LEGO, partnering with new node operators and other DeFi protocols, LDO holders have grown tired of governance. Even the newly invented Omnibus votings often struggle to reach the quorum within 24 hours voting time.

Although we expect the upcoming Easy Track feature to remove part of routine operations from the DAO votings, we believe there's another thing to be done in order to optimize the Lido DAO governance.

We propose increasing the Aragon voting duration to 72 hours.

This would allow more LDO token holders to participate in voting, which results in a more meaningful voting outcome and potentially make reaching the quorum easier.

Another important voting parameter is the minimum approval threshold, currently set at 5%. The community should consider raising the approval threshold while Lido keeps spreading the LDO supply following the DAO treasury diversification strategy.

What do you think should be the proper approval threshold, given we increase the voting duration?
