

gm. I'm putting together a primer (informative text) that should give the ApeCoin DAO community some context into the implications and considerations towards building ApeChain. In particular, in the last section I outline some discussion points and comments that we should engage in as a community. Some commentary regarding gaming and scalability can also be found. The link to the initial draft, in a Notion page, can be found below.

Overall, I believe further discussion and education is necessary for the community to make a well-informed decision. After all, ApeCoin DAO is "the" DAO and community which web3 looks up to, and the concept of blockchains requires both breadth and depth of knowledge to digest.

The development and launch of a blockchain is not just a matter of technology — but, one that relates to ideologies, use case, long-term vision and more.

It's easier to say that it will be an optimistic or a zk rollup, but harder to say how it will be different.

Cheers,
