

I scatter my opinions everywhere but will try to maintain an ongoing record in a single place.

Current votes are on the Grants Council, the Protocol Delegation Program, and Badgeholder votes.

I voted for the grants council and the protocol delegation program – I've been an advocate for movement in these directions, and these are really thoroughly thought out. Feedback sessions on these have been fun and constructive.

Re badgeholders: everyone on the list is fantastic; choosing between them seems futile. The only real alternative I could imagine to voting for the individuals I nominated, which I'm doing, is voting for everyone, which felt unhelpful.

The one exception I'm granting myself is voting for Juanbug because he went an extra step and asked for my support. We also go back – he'd been following veDao and volunteered to be on our multisig (didn't happen), and that's always stuck with me as an example of enthusiastic, proactive citizenship.
