

If we were able to put the processors in a certain order to handle processing, would this help fix any problems in multiparty computing.

The challenge with achieving that order comes down to consensus, I believe. Just an intuitive shot in the dark.