

I'm sorry I'm trying to come to grasp with this.

Fewer than 25% of ENG holders voted, and now all ENG is worthless? The deadline for the swap was extended from just Jan 1 to Jan 4, and major exchanges like Bittrex were not involved.

Do I have this correct?

Is this anything less than a power grab and manipulation of price by the network validators?

Is there NOTHING to be done with ENG now?

I find this appalling behavior, quite frankly. I miss the swap by days and there's nothing to be done? There's no ongoing swap, no REAL extension (4 days, give me a break), and major exchanges were not participating. At a MINIMUM I would expect a reliable blockchain network to allow ongoing swaps and mint new tokens, even if you reward early adapters with higher exchange rates.

But to just abandon a token because <25% of token holders voted to do so, and offer NOTHING after the fact?