

It sounds like a single encryption key will be shared across all nodes but that means a single broken enclave will mean the entire network is compromised.

What is the plan for storing sensitive data? Will the system utilize additional techniques like secret sharing or multisig?