

Hi everyone.

We're considering to implement a transaction to transfer bonded SCRT between accounts. We talked about it internally at SCRT Labs and we'd love to get community feedback on this as well.

The transaction will basically allow account A to transfer SCRT that's delegated to a specific validator to account B. We're pretty sure that it won't mess up governance (we'll research further if we eventually decide to implement it), but we're unsure about market implications and want to hear more insights from the community.