

this also solves what is currently a big problem which is that currently there is no efficient way to keep my stake split evenly across 3 models, regardless of which one performs well/poorly in the short term.

this is a significant pain point for me.