

The subject says it all.

I ran the math and did the research. You know what I found? APE (the token) staking is contributing to the token's rapid decline to zero. And it neither benefits the token nor the DAO.

From my perspective, there's no changing, fixing, or arguing about it. Anyone who has even bothered to look and who wants the token to survive and for the DAO to have a fighting chance, knows that we have to kill staking.

Am I wrong (I doubt it, but good luck with that)? Well, let's discuss it.

ps. I actually have an in-depth proposal which I have been working on and off for the past few weeks. I have opted not to post it because it's not yet complete. And in the interim, I wanted to see how this discussion goes, as that may determine whether or not I complete and submit it.
