We Will Dance with Mountains is an online course and pedagogical experience dedicated to inquiry around critical topics with contemporary significance.

Bayo Akomolafe, host of the course, has been one of my greatest findings in redistribution research. I find a lot of support on his teachings and explorations, he shows me how to exist in a failed society, how to find the cracks, and go through them into the unknowable.

I think that the shift required to go through our collective problems is in the unknown, and I am not comfortable navigating this uncertainty. This course is my next exploration, I am not trying to understand why.

I will share here my notes.
