

I'm not a blockchain programmer but this would seem like an important discussion to give people like me who are currently providing eth-uni liquidity the ability to vote. Also considering the next liquidity pools looks like eth-uni is in the lead even more of a pressing issue when there's millions of UNI locked in liquidity.