

With the success of yfi tokenomics, what do community think of dropping future liquidity mining incentives, and burn some of the treasury allocation? This would help safeguarding the protocol from hostile takeover from large centralized players such as binance ftx bitmex (who are farming UNI at large scales).