

A known concern for POS systems is the richer get richer effect. Somehow this feels counterintuitive for a decentralized network to foster centralization. Are there any thoughts how the node incentives could be restricted, e.g. by using a  $\log_{10}$  for block rewards?

Would love to hear your thoughts on that.