

Keep in mind this idea is of course in idea phase.

The problem I see for members is not knowing who is responsible in regards to the DAO. Even when they contact someone, there are other parties involved, making it a group thing, or none of them have the power to make decisions, AND they rotate every 6 months. Yes we do have SC and GWG, and they play more of advisory role as they implied. And let me ask you this. Who makes the contract and terms with token custody for example. Who agreed to pay high legal fees? These are high expenses in our DAO, and we don't have an appointed person to negotiate these terms when we have other options. Or we don't need this AIP, who will make these developments happen? SC?
