Emissions

Orca may distribute ORCA tokens as rewards on certain trading pairs in order to incentivize deeper liquidity. Token issuers may also provide reward incentives to attract liquidity to their asset pairs. The amount and duration of both types of rewards are subject to change at any time.

Private Sale

There has never been a public sale of the ORCA token.

A private sale took place in September 2021, during which 9.6% of the ORCA tokens were allocated. All investors were subject to a one-year cliff, and a two-year linear vest thereafter.

Orca Treasury

The Orca Treasury ties the value of the ORCA token to Orca itself. The accumulated fees may be used to fund development, manage the token supply through buy-backs, or other initiatives that support the long-term health of the Orca protocol. You can read the latest updates on the treasury in the Orca Treasury Report #6.

Orca strives for transparency and in that spirit discloses relevant wallet addresses as follows:

Climate Fund

As part of Orca's commitment to making a real-world impact, a small fee is collected from trades, which goes to the Orca Climate Fund, which in turn invests in climate tech entrepreneurs for a sustainable future.

Shortly after the launch of the ORCA token, the first ever "proto-governance" vote was held to determine which of two organizations should receive the donation. The worthy recipient chosen by the Orca community was Ocean Conservancy. The first donation of 550,000 was announced in November 2022.

Orca has worked closely with Ocean Conservancy to determine which of their current initiatives will benefit the most from the additional funds.

To support a smooth donation process, funds were converted to USDC in advance of the donation. As you can imagine, communicating with potential recipients can be challenging when the proposed value of the donation is constantly fluctuating! Going forward, tokens allocated to the Climate Fund will be converted to stables on a quarterly basis.
